

Gregg Besozzi
Army, CPT
Trainee in the Accelerated Operations
Management Program with Transocean

Former Army CPT Gregg Besozzi "is an influential leader who understands the big picture and knows how to achieve results," says LTC Heather A. Kness. As Commander of Fort Bragg's 601st Area Support Medical Company, Besozzi was responsible for transitioning responsibilities for health clinics to Iraqis. Today, he is a trainee in the Accelerated Operations Management program with offshore drilling contractor Transocean (Houston). Besozzi received a Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering from the United States Military Academy.

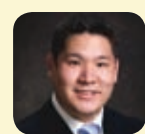

Derick B. Brough
Army, MSG
3rd Infantry Division, Provost
Marshal Office Operations
Noncommissioned Officer-in-Charge, Pending retirement

Army MSG Derick B. Brough's achievements as the Provost Marshal Noncommissioned Officer-in-Charge "have been remarkably impressive," says his supervisor, CPT Latisha Brooks. In Afghanistan, he developed and implemented security plans for the visits of celebrities such as Kellie Pickler and Robert Irvine to Kandahar Airfield. Brough has volunteered for Special Olympics at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He has also formed a team for the Relay for Life, raising nearly $4,500.

Kieran Carroll
Navy, LT
Staff member for the Navy
Wounded Warrior program at Walter Reed

Navy LT Kieran Carroll works for the Navy Wounded Warrior program at Walter Reed National Military Medical Center, managing the non-medical care needs of Navy and Coast Guard patients. That "could require anything from advising on important monetary benefits to listening to a wounded, ill and injured service member's frustrations with their current circumstance," says LCDR Dante Terronez. He was hand-selected to be attached to a Special Operations Task Unit and performed crucial intelligence collection missions.

David S. Chang
Army, MAJ
Chairman and CEO of Chang Holding Company

Former Hawaii Gov. Linda Lingle says Army MAJ David S. Chang "always does what is best for the organization rather than what is best for him and his career." After leaving active duty, Chang has become an award-winning entrepreneur as Chairman and CEO of Chang Holding Company. He is a West Point graduate, with a Bachelor of Science in Economics and Computer Science and holds a Master of Arts in Political Science from the University of Hawaii.

Eugene T. Chu
Army, CPT
Full-time MBA student at Texas Christian University

Army CPT Eugene T. Chu's communication skills "extended across cultures," says his colleague, Operations Officer Jeff Kalil. Chu is currently a full-time Master's in Business Administration student at Texas Christian University. As Range Safety Officer in 2013, Chu prepared more than 150 Air Force personnel deploying to Afghanistan. In Iraq, he was the key officer to re-start a stalled Iraqi Army promotions process. And in Korea in 2005, he led a riot control detachment. He is a current member of Mensa, the international high IQ society.

Jeffrey W. Clapper
Air Force, MSgt
Senior Communications
Manager for the North Texas
Food Bank

The Mayor of Tokyo and the U.S. Department of State honored Air Force MSgt Jeffrey W. Clapper for his role as director of the 2010 Kanto Plain Special Olympics held in Japan. Today, he is Senior Communications Manager for the North Texas Food Bank in Dallas. He completed his associate's degree in 2003, a specialized Department of Defense Motion Media Studies Program at Syracuse University in 2006, a Bachelor of Science in 2009 and a Master of Arts in Organizational Leadership in February 2013.

Drew Concannon
Army, CPT
Consultant with Booz Allen
Hamilton and current law school student at American University

Army CPT Drew Concannon is an associate with Booz Allen Hamilton, providing management and analytical consulting support. "His exceptional support to (federal) organizations has earned him numerous kudos from clients," says Lisa Gross, senior associate. Concannon was awarded the Bronze Star for combat service in Iraq. His proudest moment in the military was serving as an Intelligence Officer producing several analytical intelligence products focused on counter-insurgency.

Kevin Conroy
Air Force, Capt
Sales and trading on the Futures and OTC
Derivatives desk at Citigroup Global Markets

As a veteran, Air Force Capt Kevin Conroy has "conquered many obstacles to achieve success." He works full-time in sales and trading on the Futures and OTC Derivatives desk at Citigroup Global Markets (Cit). Conroy is also in the Air Force Reserves, separating from active duty in 2010. He has attended dozens of veteran-support events aimed at helping these individuals as they transition to civilian life and is the junior bank lead of the 2013 Veterans on Wall Street Fundraising Concert and Gala, whose goal is to raise more than $1 million for veterans needing aid. Conroy has a Master's in Finance from Indiana University's Kelley School of Business and a Master's in Business Administration from New York University's Stern School of Business.

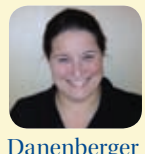

Richard Crazythunder
Navy, PO2
Communication and Signals manager for Norfolk
Southern Railroad

Richard Crazythunder is a Communication and Signals manager for Norfolk Southern Railroad. He exited the Navy as a PO2. During his military career, he was named Junior Sailor of the Year for 2007 Fleet Readiness Center South East. "He produced ready-for-issue gear and was always willing to teach others how to fix the equipment. Richard Crazythunder is great at training others - always the go-to guy," says Alyssa Clark-Whitechurch, who was his supervisor from 2005 to 2007. Crazythunder graduated with honors from Pensacola State College.

Michael Dakduk
Marines, SSGT
Executive Director of Student Veterans of America

Former Marine SSGT Michael Dakduk is executive director of Student Veterans of America. He is an Iraq and Afghanistan veteran. After his first Iraq deployment, Dakduk served with the Marine Special Operations Command, 1st Marine Special Operations Battalion out of Camp Pendleton. In Iraq, he was inducted into an Army Calvary Unit's Order of the Spur. Dakduk has a Bachelor of Science in Public Administration from the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

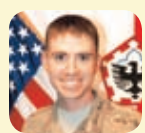

Nicolette Danenberger
Navy, PO1
Operations Excellence
Specialist, Georgia-Pacific

This September, Nicolette Danenberger took on a new job at Georgia-Pacific LLC in Charleston, S.C., as an Operations Excellence Specialist. Previously, she was a Knowledge Manager for Carrier Team One at AMSEC LLC. Danenberger has a Bachelor of Science from Excelsior College in Nuclear Engineering Technologies and a Master of Science from The George Washington University in Engineering Management.

Benjamin T. Faw
Army, CPT
Student at Harvard
Business School in Boston
(Class of 2014)

CPT Benjamin T. Faw is most proud that during his Army service, he led efforts to bring clean water to the village of Heychell, Iraq. CPT Faw liaised between Iraqi leaders and Army superiors to secure funding. After months of supervision, the plant received an upgraded chlorination system to provide 10,000 local Iraqis with clean water. He exited the Army in November 2011 and is currently enrolled in Harvard Business School with a 2014 graduation date.

Spencer Garrison
Army, CPT
Public Affairs Officer,
555th Engineer Brigade

CPT Spencer Garrison "has served skillfully and professionally in various positions of high responsibility, during his assignments at Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Wash., as well as combat operations in Iraq and Afghanistan," says Lt. Col. Jenny Willis, his former supervisor. He has a 2009 Bachelor of Science degree from West Point. After his Army career, he would like to pursue a career in educational leadership. Garrison has also participated in the 2008 Philadelphia and the 2009 Boston marathons.

James R. Hagle
Marines, SgtMaj
Current Sergeant Major in the Marine Corps

Under Marine SgtMaj James Hagle's leadership, retention and reenlistment rates have been up and meritorious promotions have doubled, says LtCol Wade Wiegell. Hagle was a Platoon Sergeant in combat in Afghanistan where he earned a Bronze Star. He was the First Sergeant of Marine Security Company for the Presidential Retreat at Camp David and was promoted as a Sergeant Major in 2011.

Adam L. Hamilton
Navy, LT
Supply Officer

LT Adam Hamilton has been selected for the Navy's prestigious 810 Civilian Institutions program. He will be sent to the McCombs School of Business at the University of Texas-Austin as a full-time graduate student. He is a recipient of the Defense Meritorious Service Award for deploying to Afghanistan in support of a Joint Task Force. He also has earned three naval officer warfare qualifications: Surface Warfare Supply Corps Officer, Naval Aviation Supply Officer and the Naval Expeditionary Supply Corps Officer.

Caleb Huff
Army, SPC
Self-employed stonemason

Former Army SPC Caleb Huff was in Afghanistan clearing landmines in 2010-2011. "During that time, we accomplished clearing 2.4 million square meters of mine fields including 50214 rockets and bombs cleared and 5,120 mines cleared." After he exited the Army, Huff raised $4,000 for the Homebase Program. Founded by Massachusetts General Hospital and the Red Sox Foundation, the Homebase Program helps veterans with PTSD and TBI. Today, he is working as a stonemason subcontractor.

Christopher W. Jones
Army, 1LT
MBA student at Olin School of Business at Washington University

As an Army sergeant, and later as a lieutenant, Chris W. Jones' work in the intelligence field "was marked with many published achievements," says MAJ Daniel Galloway, Special Troops Battalion, 1st Sustainment Brigade. "He influenced very real outcomes of events he did not control," Galloway says of Jones. He is also a volunteer with homeless veterans at The Salvation Army in St. Louis.

Matt Larson
Air Force, Capt
Modification Project
Technical Specialist on Air Force One for Boeing

Former Air Force Capt Matt Larson starts a new job in October as Modification Project Technical Specialist on Air Force One for Boeing in Oklahoma City. He served in Afghanistan as the Maintenance Officer-in-Charge of an HH-60 Combat Search and Rescue Unit. "Even though flying operations increased by 33 percent, we were able to actually increase aircraft availability by 7 percent," he says. His unit was credited with 32 combat rescues.

Jim Lawson
Army, MAJ
Chief of Intelligence at the U.S. Army Maneuver Center of Excellence, Fort Benning

Recently, Army MAJ Jim Lawson became Chief of Intelligence at the U.S. Army Maneuver Center of Excellence at Fort Benning, Ga. "I cannot think of a more respected and talented officer who will conduct these duties," says LTC Justin T. Mufalli, Director of Training Chief at the Center. Lawson has been deployed twice to Iraq, then to Korea and Afghanistan since 2001.

Paul David Lucas, Jr.
Army, SGT
Associate,
Booz Allen Hamilton

David Lucas, Jr. is responsible for all U.S. Forces Command training support packages that pertain to the tactical collection of biometrics. He is also directly responsible for the training of more than 25,000 soldiers at the 3rd Infantry Division at Fort Stewart, Ga. Lucas is one of only

PRESENTED BY

accenture

High performance. Delivered.

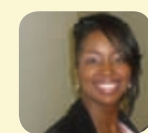

CivilianJobs.com Congratulates the 2013 Top 40 Under 40 Military 400 in the United States with Certified Biometrics Professional credentials from the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers.

Nolan Martin
Army, 1LT
S5, 2nd Battalion/
75th Ranger Regiment

Army 1LT Nolan Martin graduated from West Point in 2011 and has completed Airborne, Air Assault, Stryker Leader and Ranger School. In 2012, he deployed to South Afghanistan with his platoon, earning his Combat Infantryman Badge and a Bronze Star. Recently, he earned an assignment in 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment. While at West Point, Martin was part of Omicron Delta Kappa Honor Society.

C. Rene Albert-Matthews
Air Force, SSGT
PM Business Leader,
Procter & Gamble

During her six-year Air Force service, former SSGT C. Rene Albert-Matthews completed her CCAF degree in Aerospace Ground Equipment. This enabled her to be hired at Procter & Gamble as a PM Business Leader. She coordinates the planning and scheduling for Procter & Gamble's UD2 Business. "I am also very technical with the equipment, and I train others," she says. Albert-Matthews received her bachelor's degree in Technical Business Management from Embry Riddle Aeronautical University in 2012.

Matthew J. McCullough
Navy, LT
Member of Reserve at Patrol and Reconnaissance Squadron THIRTY

While Aide-de-Camp to Commander, Carrier Strike Group TWO, Navy LT Matthew J. McCullough directly supported the admiral. He also orchestrated a multi-national, Bicentennial Commemoration of the War of 1812. McCullough was the Pilot Training Officer at the Fleet Replacement Squadron for the Maritime Patrol and Reconnaissance Community. "Of Matt's many outstanding qualities, it is his humility that most impressed me," says Rear Admiral Greg Nosal. He will be joining the Reserve Unit at Patrol and Reconnaissance Squadron THIRTY in Jacksonville.

Conor C. McNamara
Army, CPT
Current Army Captain

Army CPT Conor McNamara is "a model junior officer, having excelled in the infantry since graduating from West Point," says CPT Jeremy S. Medaris, who served as McNamara's Company Commander in Alaska and Afghanistan. Upon arriving at his first duty station in Fort Wainwright, Ark., "he immediately made an impact as a Rifle Platoon Leader in a Stryker Brigade Combat Team gearing up for deployment," Medaris says. "He developed and executed detailed training plans for the entire 171-man company."

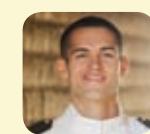

Melanie M. Monts de Oca
Navy, LT
Health Services
Administrator, Navy
Medicine Professional Development Center,
Bethesda

From January 2012 to September 2013, Navy LT Melanie M. Monts de Oca was Health Services Administrator at the Navy Medicine Professional Development Center in Bethesda, Md. She assisted in the execution and monitoring of programs, systems and resources for the Navy's medical scholarship programs. Previously, Monts de Oca was the Wounded Warrior Case Manager and Recovery Care Coordinator for Navy Wounded Warrior-Safe Harbor.

Clark W. Morrison
Navy, PO2
Work Center Supervisor,
Fleet Readiness Center
Mid-Atlantic

During deployments with HS-11, Helicopter Antisubmarine Squadron 11, Navy PO2 Clark W. Morrison "put forth remarkable efforts," says his colleague, Chris Bubliss. He is currently the Work Center Supervisor at Fleet Readiness Center Mid-Atlantic in Patuxent River, Md. "My shop performs Intermediate Level maintenance on F/A-18 A-G Avionics/Avionics Subsystems using CASS Workstations," he explains. Morrison has received three Navy and Marine Corps achievement medals.

Michael J. Noce
Navy, LT
Fire Control Officer,
USS Bunker Hill

As the Fire Control Officer on the USS Bunker Hill, Navy LT Michael J. Noce leads a division of 23 sailors in operation, maintenance and repair of the AEGIS Combat Weapons System. "He is a rising star in the Navy Surface Warfare community and deserves recognition," writes Commander Jason Patterson, who is Noce's executive officer. Noce is a Distinguished Graduate from Tulane University ROTC.

Lisa Parrott
Marines, Capt
Founder of VETS Consulting

This year, former Marine Capt Lisa Parrott started a consulting company - VETS Consulting - to work with companies interested in hiring veterans. She developed a blog called Career DI to pass on the knowledge she learned as a military recruiter when she worked for Amazon from 2010 to 2012. She has served on the boards of Hire America's Heroes and the Marine Executive Association in Camp Pendleton, and was a mentor with Boots to Shoes.

Matthew J. Quick
Army, MSG
Currently attending the US Army Sergeant Major
Academy at Fort Bliss

Army MSG Matthew J. Quick started as a third-generation Marine and transferred to the Army "in hopes of doing something great for others." SGM Patrick J. Hickok first worked with Quick for the retention program of the largest Army Component Command. "Many of the practices and methods (Quick) instituted are still in use today," Hickok says. He is attending the U.S.

Army Sergeant Major Academy at Fort Bliss, Texas, with a July 2014 promotion to SGM.

Derek Rey
Marines, Capt
MBA student at Darden
School of Business, University of Virginia

During his Marine Corps service, Capt Derek Rey has handled everything from providing security to the towns of Hit and Kubaysah in Iraq, to conducting external security operations on the Cuban border at Naval Station Guantanamo Bay. He also trained more than 400 specialized Marines for embassies and diplomatic missions, says his former commander, Maj John South. In that role, Rey was Executive Officer for Bravo Fleet Anti-Terrorism Security Team.

Seth Robert
Marines, Sgt
Operations Manager, Canrig
Drilling Technology Ltd.

As an Operations Manager at Canrig Drilling Technology Ltd., Seth Robert oversees operations in the Southern United States. He exited the Marines as a sergeant and has been at Canrig ever since. Robert received his Master's of Business Administration in 2011 from DeVry University, Keller Graduate School of Management. In the Marines, he received the Marine of the Quarter for his unit and NCO of the Quarter for his Marine Air Group. He also received the Navy and Marine Corps Achievement medal.

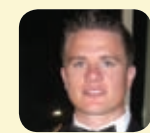

Tony Rossi
Navy, PO1
Critical Environment
Program Manager,
McKinstry Co.

Tony Rossi's Naval experience in nuclear engineering and leadership and his commitment to the mission "provided a level of comfort in hiring that has been validated time and time again," says Chris Read, Critical Environments Facility Operations Director at McKinstry Co. Rossi is the Critical Environment Program Manager, a key role within the team.

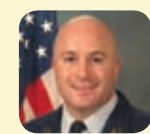

Terry Schooler
Army, MAJ
Instructor Pilot for the UC-35
Army MAJ Terry Schooler is the only commissioned officer and instructor pilot for the UC-35 in the Army.

While deployed in 2008, Schooler developed an autoimmune disorder which required his evacuation from the theater. After returning to flight status in under a year, Schooler is the Executive Officer for the Jet Training Detachment at Dobbins Air Reserve Base, Ga. and is also an instructor pilot who trains soldiers from the Active Component, Army Reserves and Army National Guard.

Ryan Sund
Army, SSG
Estimator for Long Painting
Company

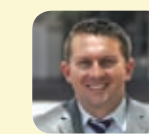

Former Army SSG Ryan Sund received the Bronze Star for service in Operation Enduring Freedom. "It is very rare for a Staff Sergeant to receive a Bronze Star," says MSG Christopher R. Jager, who served with him. Before exiting this May, Sund served as Operations and Training NCOIC for the 4th Battalion, 160th Special Operations Aviation Regiment. His main task was to set up training with outside agencies, civilian and military, as well as setting up many Joint Training exercises with Army Special Operations Units.

Christopher Terrio
Air Force, SMSgt
Superintendent of the National Reconnaissance
Office Operations Center

Air Force SMSgt Christopher Terrio is the first Superintendent of the National Reconnaissance Office Operations Center. Terrio manages a multinational team in the operation of multi-billion dollar space systems. He served as

Superintendent of Standardization and Evaluation for the 21st Operations Group at Peterson Air Force Base, Colo. and managed operations in nine countries as well as a $3.2 billion space surveillance network

Shawn J. VanDiver
Navy, PO1
President, VanDiver
Consulting

After he exited the Navy as a PO1 this May, Shawn J. VanDiver launched VanDiver Consulting, which handles security, emergency preparedness and efficiency consulting needs. He is an Ambassador for the Bill, Hillary and Chelsea Clinton Foundation. VanDiver has his Bachelor of Science in Domestic Security Management and a Master of Science in Homeland Security and Safety Engineering from National University.

Sandy Vithayanonth
Army, CPT
MBA student at the University of Texas at Austin

The "proudest achievement" for former Army CPT Sandy Vithayanonth was co-founding a non-profit, called the "Duke Association," with a mission to build a memorial dedicated to the 118 fallen soldiers of the "Duke Brigade." "Despite having no previous experience in non-profits and fund-raising, we were ultimately able to raise over $175,000," he says. As a Platoon Leader in Afghanistan, Vithayanonth "heroically saved the lives of his fellow soldiers by exposing himself to enemy fire and halting an enemy attack through coordinated artillery fires," says LTC Steve M. Smith. He was awarded a Bronze Star Medal and an Army Commendation Medal for Valor. He is scheduled to graduate with a Master's of Business Administration from the University of Texas at Austin in spring 2014.

Christopher Welsh
Marines, Maj
Solution Sales Leader and Manager, IBM

Following his 2005 Master's of Business Administration degree from University of California/Davis Graduate School of Management, Christopher Welsh immediately began work at IBM. He is a solution sales leader and manager. In addition, Welsh, a Major in the Marine Reserves, is the Company Commander of a Reserve unit of 150 Marines and sailors.

Michael A. Willis
Navy, LT
Associate,
Booz Allen Hamilton

Willis was a Surface Warfare Officer who led his boarding team to restore order on a North Korean merchant vessel that had been taken over by Somali pirates. His team safely detained the pirates and provided life-saving medical care to three critically injured North Korean sailors. As a Lieutenant, Willis received the Navy/Marine Corps Leadership Award, which is awarded to the top 16 division officers in the Surface Warfare Officer community. Additionally, Willis is a "Big Brother" mentor.

Brad M. Zabek
Navy, PO2
Health Physics Instructor,
Norfolk Naval Shipyard

Brad Zabek is a leader in the Health Physics community at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, says Health Physicist Timothy Kerrigan. He developed a mentoring program for members of the Radiological Training Branch. "Brad's perfect mix of both education and military experience helps him excel in the Radiological Controls field," Kerrigan says of Zabek. He was part of the Transfusion Services Department and the Armed Service Blood Program.