CivilianJobs.com Promotes Smith to Executive Consultant

Online and on-base resource for transitioning military announces promotion

Atlanta, Georgia, February 21, 2011 – CivilianJobs.com, where America's military connects with civilian careers, announced today that Marla Smith has been promoted to the position of Executive Consultant.

"Marla strives to find the perfect match of recruiting tools to fit the needs and budget of each client she works with," said Bill Basnett, vice president of operations of CivilianJobs.com. "Her hard work and dedication to providing the best customer service has made her a valuable asset to her clients and to CivilianJobs.com."

Smith is based in CivilianJobs.com's metro-Atlanta headquarters and will continue to serve a national client base from this location. Prior to joining CivilianJobs.com, Marla was a Radiation and Medical Oncology Staffing Consultant at a major medical staffing firm.

About CivilianJobs.com

CivilianJobs.com is the web site where America's military connects with civilian careers. The site offers employers and job seekers access to an online job board, military job fairs, and employer advertising in a world-wide military base newspaper. These services provide employers with the most efficient and cost-effective way to access the ex-military talent pool for candidates with backgrounds in fields such as transportation, maintenance, administrative / finance, healthcare, IT, telecom and law enforcement as well as for positions that require security clearances. CivilianJobs.com is headquartered in metro-Atlanta, GA, and can be found on the web at www.CivilianJobs.com.
